Acknowledgements ix

Introduction 1

1 Dialogism: the Potential for Change and for Resistance to Change 8
   1 The Sources of “Becoming” in Philosophical Idealism 10
   2 “Becoming” as Socio-linguistic Event 13
   3 Towards a Historical Account of the Unconscious? 16
   4 From Literary Dialogism to Dialectical “Becoming” 21
   5 “Speech Genres” and Creativity 24
   6 Anticipation and Prevention: the Problem of Temporality 27
   7 Conclusion 33

2 The Fissured Modern Subject: Paradox versus “Becoming” in Dostoevsky’s Notes from Underground 36
   1 Dialogical “Becoming” or Frozen Dialectic? 38
   2 The Ethics of Capitalism 45
   3 The Internal Catastrophe 48
   4 The Prison House of Paradox 52
   5 A Modern Liar’s Paradox 54
   6 An Unconscious within Hyperconsciousness? 61
   7 Revolutionary Dreams or Literary Nostalgia? 66
   8 Dialogism Violated 69
   9 Literature and the Social Unconscious 79

3 Rethinking Ideology as a Field of Dialogical Conflict 82
   1 Bakhtin’s Developmental Model 82
   2 The Authority Concealed in the Utterance 85
   3 The Idea of a Single Ideology Is Itself Ideological 90
   4 Ideological Conflict and the Production of the Unconscious 92
   5 The Dialectics of Repression 95
   6 Interpellation Revisited 98
   7 The Relationship of Dialogism and Dialectics 101

4 A Contradictory Symbiosis Is Born: the Rival Ideologies of the Market and the State under Capitalism 105
   1 The Rival Myths of Nature in Bourgeois Ideology 107
   2 The Capitalist Double-bind and the Displacement of Guilt 114
   3 Social Contradiction Internalised 116
   4 Loyalty versus Law: a Buried History 117
   5 Market Addressivity: Capitalism without Guilt? 119
   6 The Market’s Need for Permanent Non-satisfaction 123
   7 Conclusion 126

5 Captivating the Unruly Subject: Ideology in Early Modern Europe 127
   1 Monetarisation and the Crisis of Identity 130
   2 The Symbolic Divinisation of the State 138
   3 Royal Charisma: a Concealed Contradiction in the Baroque Spectacle 141
   4 The “Theatricality” of Power? 144
   5 Capturing the Will to Believe 148
   6 The Solar Theatricality of Absolutism in Shakespeare’s Henriad 151
   7 From Solar Absolutism to “Charismatic” Seduction 155
   8 Carnival and Charisma: the Concealed Connection 158
   9 Carnival and Dialectics 161
10 Anticipation, Prevention, and Unconscious Guilt 164

6 Repairing the Universe: Mysticism as Loss and Longing 167
   1 The Reactionary Activist: a Serious Quijote? 172
   2 Textual Authority: from Desire to Method 179
   3 Transverberation: the Divine Word Reincarnated 185
   4 Conclusion: from Mysticism to “Modernity” 197

7 Baroque Incompletion, the Captivated Subject, and the Humour of Don Quijote 199
   1 Theatrical Addressivity 203
   2 The Comic Counter-discourse 204
   3 Capturing the Spectator’s Desire 207
   4 Baroque Incompletion 210
   5 The Aesthetics of “Becoming” versus Timeless Form 212
   6 A Comic Great Theatre of the World 215
   7 The Captivated Reader 219
   8 Competitive Desire 225
   9 Charisma and Competitive Envy 229
   10 The Captivated Quixotic Critic 235

8 The Dialectics of Laughter and Anxiety 239
   1 Carnival Enters into History 243
   2 Laughter and Religious Conflict 248
   3 The “Risibility” of the Lower Other in Classical Aesthetics 250
   5 Modernising Hobbes’ Dialectic 259
   6 Playing with Breakdown: a Structural or a Dialogical Model of Laughter? 261

Conclusion 271

Bibliography 275

Name Index 282

Subject Index 285